BREED THEATER

"The Military Air Scout" with Aerobics and Aerobics Gun, as Used in Modern Warfare.

The feature picture at the Breed to day is entitled "The Military Air Scout" and offers the public the rare opportunity of viewing an up to date battle between a modern war aeroplane and a modern war submarine. The commanding officer of the army, with his daughter Marie and Lieutenant Wentworth, are watching the introduction of the aeroplanes as a vehicle for carrying death to the opposing army in the case of battle. The lieutenant is much interested, both in the aeroplane and Marie, and concludes to take a course in aviation, later making his first flight.

News that war has been declared is heard, and Wentworth is ordered to attack the enemy by flying above them and dropping bombs among the war vessels.

Taking leave of his sweetheart, he makes a successful flight, and succeeds in sinking two of the battleships. The opposing army calls into service its aeroplane gun, determined to meet the flying machine with its own weapons. They succeed in getting a head on the aeroplane and after several shots they manage to disable it. When Wentworth extricates himself from the wreck, he finds he has a broken arm, and escapes to the army headquarters and reports to the commander.

After a visit to the hospital and his injuries are attended to, he calls to see Marie, but she is not there. He is then informed by the commander that Marie has been killed by the aeroplane gun.

This picture is an up to date military drama, full of novel and exciting scenes and is one of the cleverest and altogether most delightful stories.

POL'S THEATER

A very cordial audience witnessed The Fatale Wedding at Pol's theater yesterday. As this has been a week for the popular stock company, the audience no doubt took it into consideration and applauded more than liberally. The Fatale Wedding is a play with exciting episodes and abundant with dramatic situations and also is interspersed with rich humor that stimulates with real feelings of joy. Roger Barker as the husband part, never led to believe that his wife is false and Victoria Montgomery as the faithful wife were both excellent in their respective parts, and Catherine Clinton was also good. The French butler, was amusing and drew many laughs with his droll mannerisms. Kenneth Biss as Robert Curtis, man about town, although a new departure for him to play the heavy part, nevertheless showed that he is an actor with rare intellect and conception. He could easily play this line continually and more than make good. The balance of the company were excellent.

AT THE AUDITORIUM

"Before Georgetown," the first release of the New Republic company, was shown here Monday and Tuesday of this week and attracted considerable attention. The picture was a two reel and showed a great deal of thought in the settings and scenery which were all according to history. On next Monday and Tuesday the management has been showing "Hagard's masterpiece," "She" in two reels, the Thanet company. This picture has started people talking all over the country where it has been shown, and it gives the best of being one of the best motion pictures ever shown at this house.

The Kennard Bros. comedy acrobats are on the bill for the first half of the present week. The picture is a sketch which is a scream from start to finish. Floretta Clark has a very neat dancing specialty, for which she receives a well deserved ovation. The Garry and Revere are making quite a hit with their different numbers, especially with the introduction of the Turkey Trot dance. All the pictures are interesting, clear and steady.

ORPHEUM THEATER, DANIELSON

This house has a very special programme of pictures and vaudeville to offer its patrons on Thursday evening of this week, and there will be no advance in prices. Two big features are for special mention. Don Pflano, the wonder horse, will show his real live animal reads, writes, adds, multiplies and subtracts and does a hundred other things that no other horse has ever done so successfully. He is truly a wonder.

The other big feature is a marvelous motion picture, entitled "Lost in the Jungle." This reel is filled with thrilling and heart-breaking scenes, in one of which a beautiful young girl, lost in a South African jungle, is attacked by a ferocious leopard. This picture scene is amazing in its vivid detail and has excited hundreds of audiences out of their seats. It is one of the most surprising scenes ever staged before a camera. It is a picture worth going to see, and in the making of which the young woman was seriously injured by the leopard.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Man Found Guilty of Murder Slashes Throat With Glass.

New York, Jan. 18.—Just after the dismissal of a jury which late today found Joseph Ferrone guilty of murder in the first degree for killing his wife, Ferrone created scenes of intense excitement in the courtroom by trying to take his life, slashing his throat viciously with fragments of glass that he had concealed in his hands. Court attendants pounced on him before he could inflict more than superficial wounds. The incident so excited George W. Gammon, one of the jurors, that he collapsed when he reached the corridor outside the chamber, falling heavily to the marble floor. He was picked up unconscious with a deep laceration in the back of his head and after treatment by a surgeon was taken home.

Ferrone nearly collapsed when the verdict was announced and managed to make a desperate attempt to cut his throat with a fragment of glass. He was picked up by attendants and taken to the hospital. He is now recovering from his wounds.

My wife took her own life, you have taken mine! he gasped out, as the questioning ceased. A moment later attendants saw the glint of glass between his fingers as he raised his hand to his throat. The courtroom was in an uproar as Ferrone was overpowered and removed to the Toms, where his wounds were treated. He will be arraigned for sentence Friday.
